When I saw this, I literally couldn't believe what I was seeing. I mean, homosexuals have always argued that homosexuality is normal and natural because, well, there are animals that do it. But I always thought the argument was so dumb that no serious person would ever give it a second thought.

And it really is that dumb. I mean, dumb to the point of complete and total absurdity. In fact, the Bible has a phrase for such stupidity: “Claiming to be wise, they became fools...” (Romans 1:22).

But it absolutely blows my mind that these people want to broadcast their foolishness on national television for the world to see—but again, the majority of the world falls into that category. To them, according to 1 Corinthians 1:18, the cross is foolishness and they are their own gods worshipping themselves.

Not that this even needs an explanation, but for those who do, here goes. The phenomenon of animals engaging in perceived homosexual acts is a fundamentally different matter from homosexual desires in humans. These acts in animals are typically mere displays of dominance rather than expressions of sexual preference.

Further, unlike humans, animals are not rational beings equipped with moral compasses. They operate purely on instinct, devoid of the complex reasoning and moral framework that guide human behavior. To equate animal behavior with human morality is both illogical and a gross misunderstanding of the created order and such foolishness fails to provide any justification for homosexual behavior in humans. Our actions are to be measured against the God-given standards set forth in Scripture, not the instinctual conduct of animals.
