MARCH 16, 2025

(Chuck Muth) – If you're like me, you probably don't watch much on CNN.

The network is hopelessly biased against all things conservative and especially against President Donald Trump.

Over the past decade, in particular, it's become unwatchable for most people – as evidenced by its basement-level ratings.

But on Tuesday night, November 5, 2024, I decided to surf over once it looked like Trump was going to pull off his miraculous comeback and regain the White House.

I wanted to watch the meltdown!

And the libtard talking heads didn't disappoint. It was glorious to watch all the liberal tears being shed.

But I witnessed something else that came as a complete surprise.

Mixed in with the regular clown show of libtards waxing poetic about the horrors of a second Trump presidency was a voice of calm and reason from the right: Scott Jennings.

To be honest, I'd never seen or heard of him before – despite the fact that he'd been on the air at CNN for years. I guess that's what happens when you never watch.

Anyway, on election night Jennings rendered an observation as to exactly what had just taken place and why – leaving the libtards' jaws on the ground.

And an "overnight sensation" was born.

Suddenly, conservatives were watching CNN again.

Well, not exactly watching "CNN."

They started tuning in only when Jennings was on the air to watch joyfully as he systematically destroyed the far-left talking points of his fellow talking heads.

Others, however – like myself – just can't bring ourselves to watch and hear all the crappola spewing out of the mouths of the libtards.

So there's a cottage industry of conservatives who regularly post just Scott's segments on Twitter/X, thus enabling us to have our steak while ignoring the veggies. Here's one...

“Scott Jennings forces Jake Tapper to explain that Democrats called the filibuster a racist Jim Crow relic when they were out of power - and now they love it.” (click here)

Jennings regularly strides into the lion’s den and emerges unscathed as liberal pundits hang their heads in shame and defeat – when not yelling back at him at the top of their lungs.

This was a man I wanted to meet – and I’m guessing you might as well.

So just before Christmas I reached out to his office and asked if he would come out to Las Vegas next month to be honored with Citizen Outreach’s 2025 “Courage Under Fire Award.”

There just isn’t any conservative more deserving in the country today.

And last week we got confirmation that Scott Jennings WILL be joining us for our annual Conservative Awards Dinner on Saturday, April 5, 2025 - which is also my birthday!

What a GREAT birthday present.

So please join us as we honor all of this year’s conservative champions.

Take a selfie. Get an autograph. And hang out with fellow conservatives for an exceptionally entertaining and fun evening celebrating some of the best of the best in the conservative movement today.
