ASU professor petitions Arizona Supreme Court after DEI training lawsuit blocked

“Arizona State leaders broke the law when they forced me and every other employee to take part in an ideological training that taught that it’s okay to judge people on their race, ethnicity, religion, and sex. I simply refuse to do that.”

Judge awards white college student \$3.2 million after fake racism allegation

A Texas judge awarded a white college student $3.2 million in attorney’s fees and damages after he endured years of allegations that he bullied his black friend and forced him to drink urine.

Texas A&M ends women’s and gender studies degrees

“The decision reflected both the requirements of System policies and limited student interest in the program based on enrollment over the past several years.”

Judge tosses case claiming Northwestern Law discriminated against white men

Despite the loss in court, Northwestern University in December agreed to pay $75 million to resolve a federal anti-discrimination probe. As part of the settlement, the university agreed to end all affirmative action policies.

Trio of Minnesota law professors decry arrest of Don Lemon: ‘attack on free press’

Texas opens new website for reporting alleged DEI violations at public colleges

While some advocate for the initiative as a means to empower individuals and improve educational standards, critics warn it may chill academic freedom and restrict faculty and student speech.
