Seattle Mayor Katie Wilson went fully unhinged with authors and conspiracy theorists Naomi Klein and Asta Taylor during a book talk. They’ve written a book on “End Times Fascism” that blames Jews, Christians, and tech billionaires for an impending Armageddon.

Evidently someone is taking some really good drugs with their coffee in Seattle. Socialist Mayor Katie Wilson hosted a book talk on Sept. 24 featuring Canadian activist authors and conspiracy-theorist nuts Naomi Klein and Asta Taylor, who discussed their unhinged apocalyptic book, “End Times Fascism: And the Fight for the Living World.” This goes way beyond Trump Derangement Syndrome and slides right into deflection, where leftists blame Christians and Jews for the End Times instead of looking at what they push daily.

Nuclear “Armageddon”

JNS reported that the mayor repeated and endorsed claims that Christian Zionists are working to trigger nuclear “Armageddon” along with Silicon Valley billionaires so that Jews can profit off condos in Gaza and build the third Temple in Jerusalem with “spotless red heifers.”

That’s straight-up bat crap crazy. Again, we’re back to “the Jews.” The hatred never, ever ends.

The three whack jobs sat there and discussed why the destruction from Hurricane Katrina was intentional to bring about the Rapture — not kidding. They also claimed Trump chose Mike Huckabee as his ambassador to Israel to bring about the end times.

Either these women are just nuts, or they spout this stuff as red meat for leftists to make a buck. Maybe both. Naturally, they asserted that leftists and communists are victims. They praised the WTO and riots occurring that fight “fascism,” according to the Post Millennial.

End Times Fascism

In a video that was part of the presentation, Trump, Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, Elon Musk, and other political and technology figures were portrayed as part of “end times fascism” and as white supremacists. They used apocalyptic imagery and clips from movies including “Armageddon,” “The Day After Tomorrow,” and the zombie apocalypse film “I Am Legend.”

“Your work is so important to the left, and I am proud to share a stage with you tonight as we build power not only to defend against fascism, but to create a better world,” Wilson gushed to the authors.

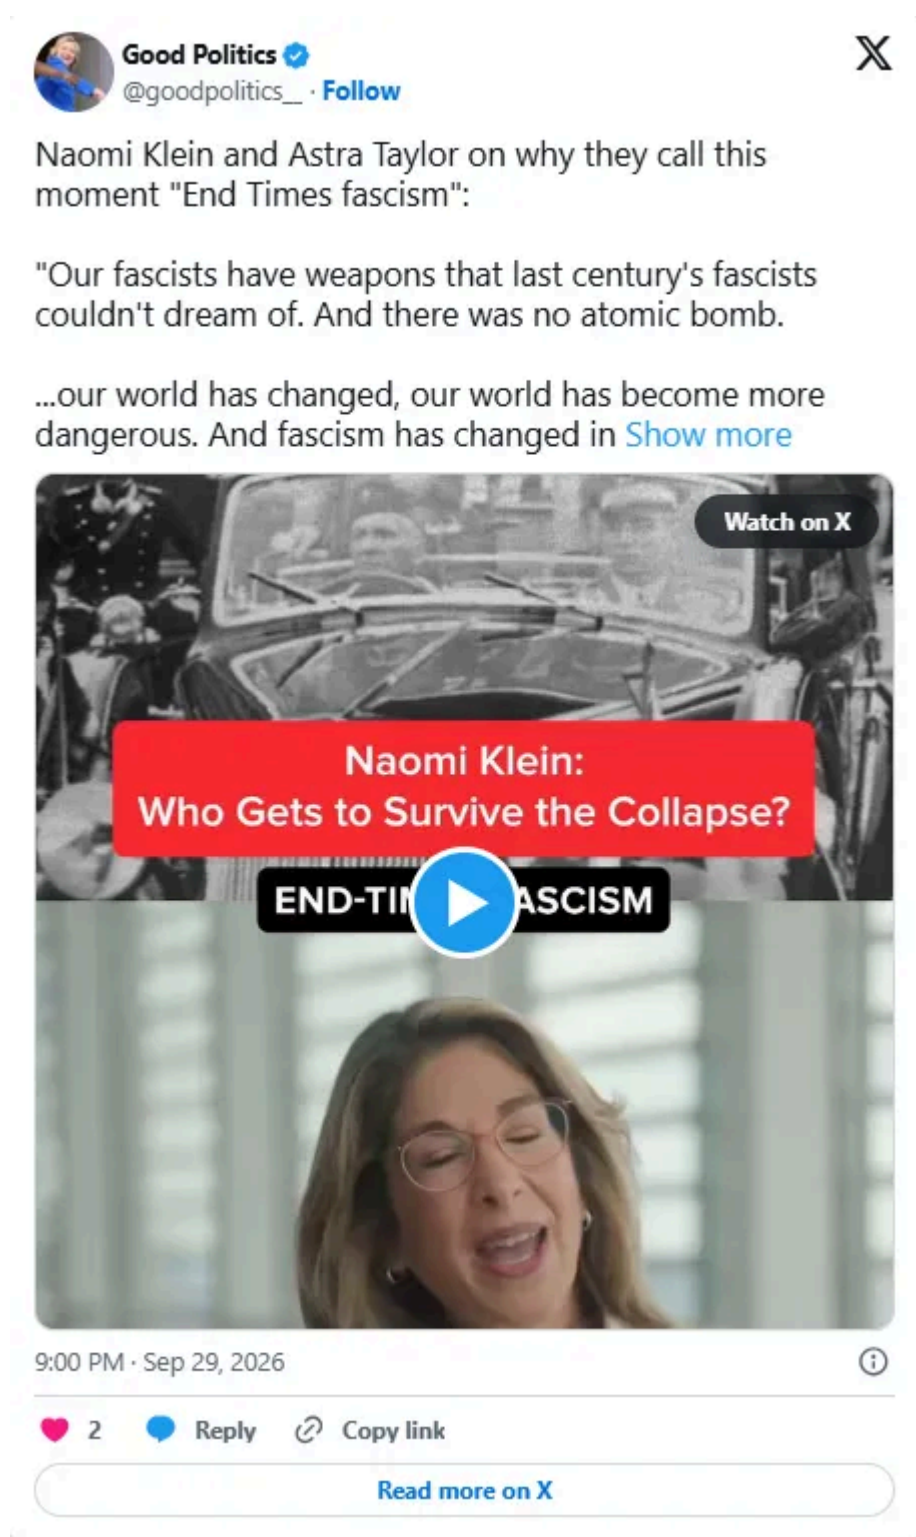

Wilson got her Jew-hatred on and referred to the war in Gaza against Hamas as a “genocide” and referenced “that juxtaposition of the genocide in Gaza with that AI-generation paradise where someone’s obviously going to make a lot of money selling condos.”

There’s no way this woman should be mayor of Seattle or anywhere else, for that matter.

The event claimed that Jared Kushner and Steve Witkoff, Trump, Musk, Mark Zuckerberg, and Palantir were part of a broader political and technological conspiracy to destroy and rebuild Gaza. The authors didn't bother to mention the slaughter on Oct. 7, 2023, that Hamas carried out, in which over 1,200 Israelis were butchered.

Klein asserted that "three different groups or facets" had formed an "end times fascism" coalition that "brought Trump to power," including Christian Zionists.

She specifically went after US Ambassador to Israel Mike Huckabee. She claimed that Trump was "enthusiastically" discussing Gaza "as a blank slate, as this redevelopment project," while "expanding the war into Iran" generated an "apocalyptic kind of excitement" about "Armageddon."

World War III with Nukes

The authors then addressed Christians – from the Post Millennial:

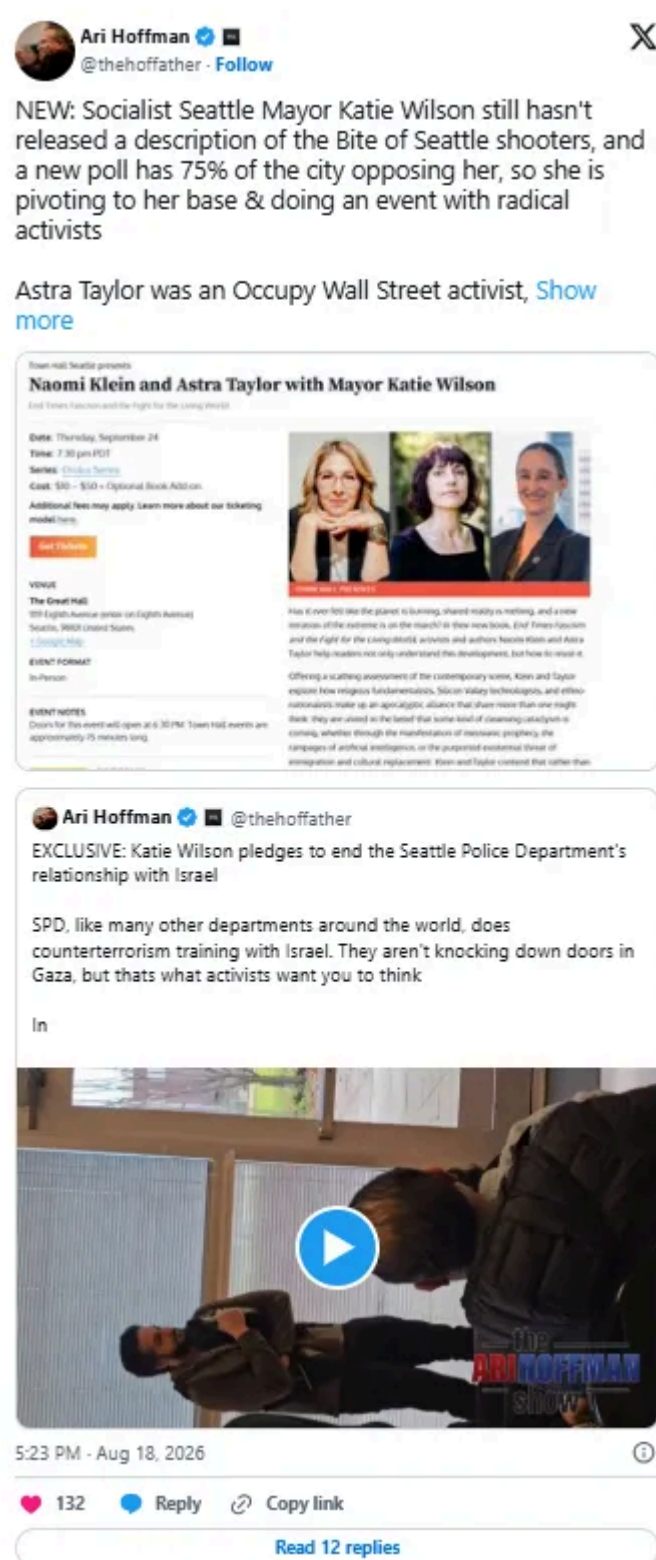

Klein then turned to Christian beliefs about the Rapture and Jerusalem's Temple Mount, Judaism's holiest site and the location of the Al-Aqsa Mosque. According to Klein, those seeking to "reconstruct the Third Temple" have "got a problem because Al-Aqsa is there." She claimed Israeli "incursions onto Al-Aqsa" could "trigger, you know, World War 3 with nukes."

"So they have the power to create an Armageddon that we are all in," Klein said.

"Astra and I, unfortunately, had to learn about spotless red heifers and all kinds of animal sacrifices, and, you know, we wish we didn't," Klein told the audience. She claimed adherents to such beliefs "control more parts of the government than has ever happened before in the history of the country, and more parts of the US government."

"We think they're wrong, that this isn't gonna bring the Messiah," Klein said, "but that doesn't mean they can't trigger the Armageddon, right?" Klein went on to invoke "disease, floods, rivers of blood," destruction, an "elevator to the sky," and "golden cities" while connecting religious apocalyptic beliefs to her broader theory about Silicon Valley and wealthy political figures.

Of course, Wilson was all over it, saying, "Wow, that's, yeah, that's wild."

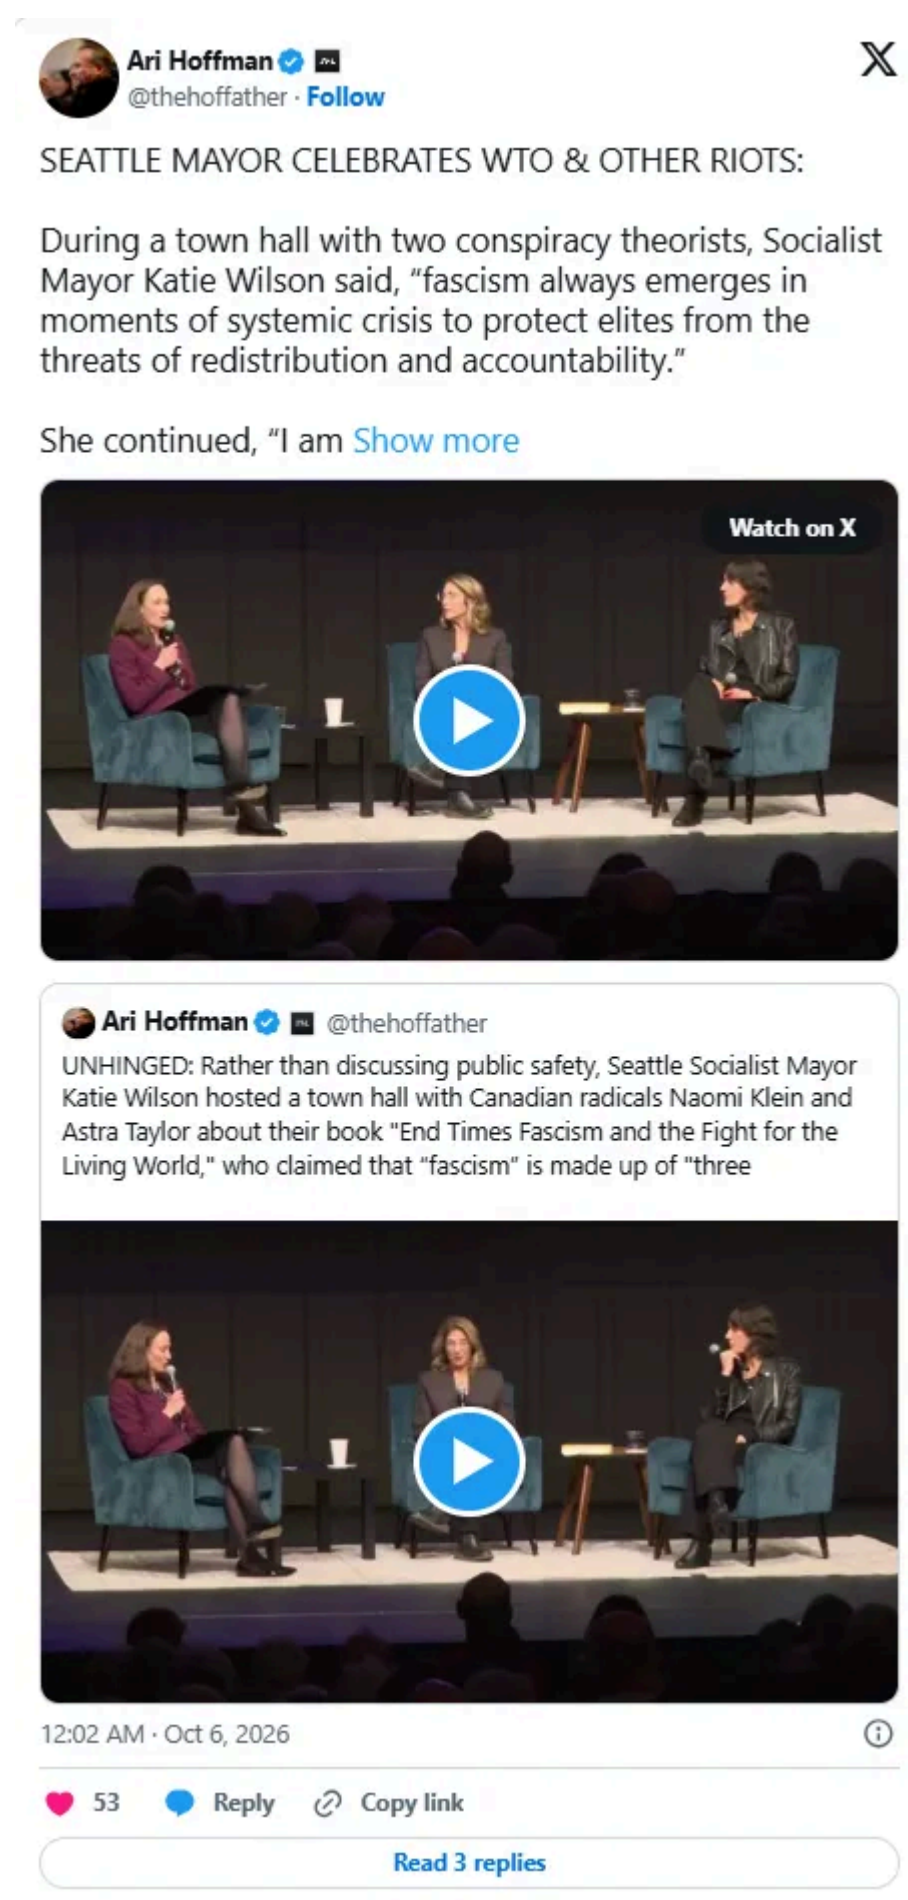

Spouting Marxism

The mayor went on to say that “fascism always emerges in moments of systemic crisis to protect elites from the threats of redistribution and accountability.” Then she dove into the radical anti-globalization movement that erupted during Seattle’s 1999 World Trade Organization conference.

"The WTO protests of 1999 were kind of this breakthrough moment for the anti-globalization movement," she remarked, before asking whether any "Battle in Seattle alumni" were in attendance.

Wilson recounted that she was 17 and not living in Seattle during the WTO protests but later traveled to Washington, DC, for protests against the International Monetary Fund and World Bank in 2000.

According to the Post Millennial, she “described the movement as a rejection of the promise that a ‘rising tide lifts all boats,’ connected it to climate activism and the Great Recession, and said that political trajectory ‘eventually led to my run for mayor last year.’”

Attempting to connect catastrophe and economic exploitation with religious ideas about the Rapture, Klein reiterated her apocalyptic theme in connecting all of it to Hurricane Katrina.

Recruiting Communists

At the end of the presentation, organizers encouraged activist recruitment.

“Join something, because this is too much for us to take on alone,” Taylor advised attendees, encouraging them to join the Democratic Socialists of America (DSA) or participate in an electoral campaign.

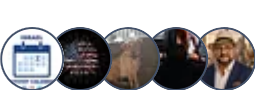

“We really have to take it on together,” she said.

Wilson also encouraged those attending to join the DSA. Despite calling herself a socialist, the DSA never endorsed her.

The whole event was very badly written fiction that leftists enthusiastically ate up. It’s hard to believe that Seattle elected Wilson as mayor.

The insanity is spreading on the left, which will lead to even more violence. The inmates are now in full control of the asylum.

This line of thinking is no mystery. Men who posess no spiritual life have only their dead carnal selves from which to draw conclusions. Always faulty, unreliable and full of death. Ignore.

I see Marxist class warfare dressed in apocalyptic language. Wilson highlighted a theory that fascism protects elites against “redistribution and accountability.” That framework gives the left a convenient monopoly on virtue: its redistribution becomes justice, while opposition becomes evidence of fascism. Add religious prophecy and billionaires plotting catastrophe, and political disagreement becomes a struggle against supposedly civilization-ending enemies. How does that help a mayor govern people who disagree with her? Wilson owes Seattle evidence, sound judgment, and equal treatment. Applauding explosive accusations while recruiting for the socialist cause shows an activist’s priorities. The mayor’s office carries obligations to the whole city, including the people her allies demonize.
